

Mobile Devices and Their Use in Healthcare: Medical Staff Policies and Procedures to Avoid Pitfalls

National Association of Medical Staff Services Synergy

March 1, 2013

The proliferation of mobile devices in our society has resulted in their use becoming commonplace in most every personal and professional venue. The universe of mobile devices includes such small units as iPhones, Android phones and BlackBerries as well as larger devices such as iPads, tablets and notebooks. The healthcare industry is not immune from this phenomenon.