

Sonya D. Reddy

Associate

Sonya Reddy is a commercial litigator who works to achieve a genuine understanding of what drives a client, how that client's business works and the other side's position. Tackling hard issues on the front-end sets her up to explain each client's position directly and concisely. She can get a thorough understanding of that client's position across without losing anyone, including herself, in technical jargon. This allows her to represent individuals and businesses from different industries, including the oil and gas, construction, intellectual property and healthcare industries.

At the trial court and appellate court, she handles a broad range of cases. These include cases involving claims of breach of contract, breach of fiduciary duty, fraud, unfair competition and defamation.

Experience

- Represented oil field logistics company against plaintiff's allegations of contract relating to equity interest.
