

Class Actions - Mass Torts

We Feel at Home in the Courtroom

Gray Reed has successfully prosecuted and defended class actions and mass actions since the 1990s. Gray Reed's class action and mass torts practice is national in scope and covers a multitude of industries, including agriculture, oil and gas, manufacturing, construction and biotechnology. We have served as part of national coordinating counsel in class actions involving multiple states and federal districts, making us well-versed in the unique rules of class and mass tort actions.

Our proven experience and skill allows us to employ strategic, creative and effective approaches for our clients. Our seasoned litigators represent clients in high-stakes, statewide and nationwide class action litigation. We are familiar with nearly every issue class actions present, including class certification, challenges to standing, jurisdiction and venue, removal, dismissal, summary judgement, arbitration, settlement administration and MDL proceedings.

As a full-service law firm, our interdisciplinary approach seamlessly combines the sharp procedural skills of our litigators with the regulatory knowledge of our practice-specific teams, allowing us to effectively serve our clients in all areas of class action litigation.