INDUSTRY INVOLVEMENT

Before moving to private practice, many of our attorneys worked for major and independent energy companies.

Our energy lawyers are frequent authors and lecturers on energy topics and have held leadership positions in industry-focused organizations such as the Rocky Mountain Mineral Law Foundation, the Energy Law Institute and the Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association.

Several attorneys regularly contribute to the firm's Energy & The Law blog, which is focused on exploring critical developments in the energy industry and how they impact clients from a legal and business perspective.

ACCESS TO RESOURCES AND GENERAL COUNSEL CAPABILITIES

Gray Reed is uniquely positioned to effectively represent and counsel the energy industry in litigation matters ranging from the routine to the most complex. When a client's need goes beyond the expertise of our trial lawyers, we can call upon a worldwide network of lawyers for international and cross-border issues and our own energy industry team of attorneys with a range of practices, all focused on the oil and gas industry. This includes energy transactions, labor and employment, tax, real estate and construction. These resources allow us to serve as outside general counsel for our clients and help solve nearly any issue they may face in the life cycle of their business.
